CTG ANNOUNCES CHANGES IN MANAGEMENT RESPONSIBILITIES

BUFFALO, N.Y. – October 17, 2005 - CTG (Computer Task Group) (NYSE: CTG), an international information technology (IT) staffing, solutions, and application management company, today announced that its Chief Financial Officer, Gregory M. Dearlove, has been named to the position of Senior Vice President, Administration and that its Board of Directors has appointed Brendan Harrington, CTG's Corporate Controller, to serve as Interim Chief Financial Officer and Treasurer. The change was initiated by Mr. Dearlove's request that he relinquish his financial duties for the Company until the Securities and Exchange Commission administrative proceeding instituted against him on September 30, 2005 in connection with his service as engagement partner on Deloitte & Touche LLP's 2000 audit of the Adelpia Communications Corporation financial statements is resolved. The matters referenced in this proceeding do not relate to CTG or Mr. Dearlove's employment by CTG.

Mr. Dearlove will continue to be employed by CTG with responsibility for all corporate non-financial administrative functions including internal information technology, benefits, risk management and corporate marketing. A Certified Public Accountant, Mr. Harrington joined CTG in February 1994 and has served in a number of managerial financial positions in the Company's corporate and European operations before being appointed Corporate Controller. Prior to joining CTG, Mr. Harrington was a Senior Accountant employed by Price Waterhouse from 1988 to 1994.

CTG Chairman and Chief Executive Officer James R. Boldt commented, "Throughout his four years as CTG's CFO, Greg has consistently performed at a high level of professional competence, commitment and integrity and he continues to have our full support and confidence. We appreciate him being forthcoming in requesting this change in his job responsibilities. As CTG's Corporate Controller and a member of our finance team for over 10 years, Brendan is very well-qualified to assume responsibilities for all of our finance functions and is supported by a strong internal finance team at all levels of our organization."
